The tenant house on the Schrock farm is significant as an example of early twentieth century rural domestic architecture Although the exact date of construction is unknown, it appears that the house was built in the early 1900's. approximate date is based upon the stylistic features of the structure. The clapboarding and the decorative detailing around the windows and doorways are of a type found commonly on turn of the century buildings.

Architecturally, the house is similar in design to the Schrock house standing across the road. The Schrock house (G-II-001) is an early nineteenth century, rural Georgian form house with a one story frame porch. It is likely that the design of this house was based on that of the one across the road.

The land on which the house stands is known historically as "Non-Pariel," a name that appears on a nineteenth century map showing the division of the land west of Fort Cumberland into military lots. The present owner of the house says that the tenant house was built by the Hershberger family. Emmanual Hershberger purchased the property, which presently includes both this house and the one across the road, in 1871 from Samuel Yoder (Allegany County Land Records, Book 34, p.45).

The farm today has about 219 acres and was purchased by the Schrock family about 1928 from the Hershberger family.
